I do have compassion for my mum. Something needs to be. I l-o-v-e this post.

They had a strict curfew, we didn't allow them to hang out with kids who were doing

Again your language should have been more comforting and supportive and offering solutions rather than causing more anxiety. They possess no or low self-confidence, no initiative, and a low tolerance for frustration and hardships which is often commonplace in the work environment.

I had such a boring and depressing childhood. Many such children are often prey for school bullies because they did not develop the social and street savvy needed to survive the school environment.
